

UNIX Introduction

Bookings 020 7837 2690

www.premierit.com

Course Duration: 3 days	Course Hours: 10:00 - 17:00
Pre-requisites: Experience of IT and an understanding of operating systems is required.
Objectives: At the end of the course, the delegate will be able to: have a good practical knowledge of the UNIX Operating System, the command structures and the editor facilities

History of UNIX
File System Structure
The Structure and use of Pathnames
File Naming Conventions
Logging in and out of the System
Command Syntax
Command Execution
File Manipulation Commands
The vi Editor
Security
User to User Communication Facilities
Commands for Searching and Sorting
Filter and Pipe Utilities
Multi-tasking
The Shell Environment
Shell Variables
Customisation of the Environment

Course Structure: Each course is divided into a series of units, supported by relevant practical exercises. You may join a public course, or book your own dedicated company room. You can also tailor the content to your specific needs; accelerating the course or running a workshop.

Help Facility: Provided by our tutors, this facility includes course content only, for a limited period.

Manuals: A comprehensive course manual provides support throughout the course, and is a useful reference for your newly acquired skills upon your return to the office.

Internal Use Only: crscore UNXB

